ABSTRACT

The functions assigned to the academic senates of California's community colleges are set forth in this paper. First, the legal and historical bases for the senates are detailed, beginning with 1963 legislation providing for the establishment of a senate at each college, tracing the origin and growth of the statewide Academic Senate for California Community Colleges (ASCCC), and noting the recognition of the ASCCC by the state legislature in 1980. Next, the paper indicates that the purpose of the academic senates is to provide a formal and effective procedure for faculty participation in the formation of district policies, and that the primary function of the senates is to make recommendations to the administration of a college and board of a district as the representative of the faculty. The following section discusses the differences between academic senates and employee organizations, and stresses that close bonds of cooperation should exist between the groups. After a section indicating that part-time faculty are currently permitted to belong to academic senates, the paper further outlines the roles of the senates with respect to the formation of college, district, and state policy; its consulting role to administrations and boards; and the assignment and acceptance of extraordinary duties. An appendix includes relevant sections of Title V of the California Administrative Code for Education and recommendations for cooperation between the ASCCC and the Office of the Chancellor. (KL)

Legal and Historic Basis of Community College Academic Senates in California

In 1963 the California State Legislature adopted Assembly Concurrent Resolution ACR 48 which requested the State Board of Education "to provide for the establishment at each junior college of an academic senate or council wherein the faculty members shall be freely selected by their colleagues for the purpose of representing them in the formation of policy on academic and professional matters at such junior colleges."

By 1968 approximately 70 college academic senates had formed to represent their faculty's recommendations to the local boards of trustees. However, the State Board of Governors, BGCCC, was formed that year to consider and decide on many educational issues of statewide concern. Thus a need existed for a formal channel whereby all local senates could pool their views and make recommendations on state educational issues to the new board as well as to other state agencies, such as the education committees of the California Legislature and the statewide senates of UC and CSUC.

In the spring of 1968 a Constitutional Convention of local senates was formed in Oakland to draft a constitution for a statewide senate. The Faculty Association of the California Community Colleges (FACCC) and the California Community and Junior College Association (CCJCA) went on record to support the formation of a statewide senate, and a year later a majority of existing local senates (40) ratified the constitution. Thus the Academic Senate for the California Community Colleges, ASCCC, was founded.

Since then, 102 colleges in California have formed college senates, and 96 of those have formally affiliated themselves with the ASCCC. Also, five multi-college districts perceived the need to form district senates in order to expedite faculty recommendations to district administrations and boards of trustees.

This year, in the spring of 1978, the BGCCC acknowledged these historical developments by legalizing the district senates in Title V with the same rights, powers, and responsibilities they gave local college senates earlier in 1968. In addition, the BGCCC formally recognized ASCCC as the statewide senate representing local academic senates "in order that the community college faculty of California may have a formal and effective procedure for participating in the formation of state policies on academic and professional matters." (see appendix 53206 for full text)

Thus it is the responsibility of ASCCC to inform local senates as well as to coordinate and represent their views on statewide educational issues such as academic standards, accreditation, articulation, basic skills, credentialing, curriculum, community involvement, grading policies, professional growth, student services, and the like.

In 1980, twelve years after the Constitutional Convention met in Oakland, the Legislature recognized the ASCCC as it does the statewide senates of UC and CSUC, by acting favorably on its request for partial funding.

The Purpose and Function of Academic Senates

Title V of the Administrative Code for Education, Chapter 1, subchapter 8, 53200-53205 (see appendix) spells out the meaning of powers, rights and responsibilities of academic senates in California community colleges. This subchapter delineates both the purpose and function of academic senates.

The purpose of the academic senate is, according to 53201, "that the faculty may have a formal and effective procedure for participating in the formation of district policies on academic and professional matters . . ." Also according to 53200b, an academic senate is an organization whose primary function is "as the representative of the faculty, to make recommendations to the administration of a college and to the governing board of a district with respect to academic and professional matters."

It is the view of the ASCCC that the purpose and functions of an academic senate differ considerably from those of an employee organization, both in viewpoint and substance (or scope) as described below. However these roles complement each other, and in fact close bonds of cooperation should exist between senates and employee organizations.

Employee Organizations and the Exclusive Representative

According to SB 160 employee organizations represent their members in employment relations until (and if) a specific organization is certified as the exclusive representative. "The scope of negotiation shall be limited to matters relating to wages, hours of employment, and other terms and conditions of employment." "Terms and conditions of employment" are then defined in the law so that the scope of representation is narrow. However, consulting rights are granted to the exclusive representative on definition of educational objectives and curricular matters. It is in this area that close cooperation between senates and employee organizations is essential to resolve overlap with the responsibilities and powers of the senate to make recommendations on academic and professional matters. (See appendix, 53203-53204.) The scope of senates historically has been broad in California covering all academic and professional matters. In addition, SB 160 quoted in the appendix does not intend to restrict, limit or prohibit the full exercise of the functions of an academic senate unless it conflicts with existing collective agreements.

We feel that the responsibility of the academic senate is quite clear. To the extent that the matter under consideration is one of wages, hours, or the general personal benefit of employees, it is clearly in the province of the employee organization. To the extent that a matter (possibly the same matter) may involve the furthering of educational goals, even to the detriment of personal benefit of faculty, the matter is in the province of the academic senates. Failure to draw this distinction and to implement the responsibility inherent in it could justifiably result in a loss of credibility in the role of the senate, and even in the demise of the senate itself as a viable body to carry out the intent of the legislative mandate given it.

It is clear that the question of viewpoint is crucial. The position of the senate is, in no way, to derogate from the rights and privileges of employee organizations in furthering the well-being of their members. But, on the other hand, the academic senate must in no way abrogate its own rights and privileges in the furthering of education itself. Are the two points necessarily in conflict? No! May they be in conflict? Yes. How are such conflicts resolved? Certainly not by either party abrogating its own responsibilities. Such conflicts may be resolved by law or the PERB (Public Employment Relations Board), but usually each organization takes its rightful stand on the issue and works cooperatively with the other to resolve the conflict.

Can Part-time Faculty Belong to Academic Senates?

Many academic senates over the years provided for membership of their part-time colleagues, but last year the Attorney General ruled that Title V excluded such membership. Both ASCCC and FACCC successfully petitioned the BGCCC to rewrite Title V to overcome the Attorney General's ruling and to explicitly allow for part-time membership on senates. The new sections 53202d and e (see appendix) now allow for such membership, and in the absence of full-time faculty at a college, the part-time faculty may form an academic senate. The ASCCC strongly encourages local senates to restructure and provide for representation of part-time faculty.

The Role of the Academic Senates

The role of the academic senate is to participate effectively in the formation of college, district, or state policy. The faculty does not encroach on administrative powers for they are concerned with carrying out or executing existing board policy, while the senate makes recommendations on changing or establishing new policy. Title V in the use of the phrase "to make recommendations" also clearly precludes the academic senate from encroaching on the powers and obligations of the board of trustees. However, this same phrase grants to the academic senate a unique charge and responsibility upon which the success or failure of board policy and procedure is dependent if such policy and procedure is to fulfill the public trust. For in no way can a board of trustees or an administrator adequately, honestly, and responsibly discharge their public trust unless their decisions are validly based. This cannot occur without input from faculty who, from a unique viewpoint, closely associate with those for whom the entire system of education was designed—the students.

Primary concerns of boards of trustees and administrators, such as implementation of legislation, tax rates, A.D.A., federal funding, grants, and other budgetary matters, along with building plans and curricular content, are not validly based unless boards of trustees and administration elicit and welcome faculty participation. Therefore, the ASCCC feels that making recommendations furthering educational goals is of the utmost importance. The crucial importance of the legislative mandate cannot be sidestepped with cries of "we are not listened to." There is no necessity to identify "being heard" with "being agreed with." Title V guarantees only that we must be heard. And while there may be administrators or boards of trustees who may seem to ignore Title V in bad faith, such behavior is no excuse for our not living up to our responsibilities in law.

Who Must Listen and To What?

According to Title V 53203-04, the academic senate, after consultation with the administration of its community college, "may present its written views and recommendations to the governing board. The governing board shall consider and respond to such recommendations." There are no restrictions as to subject matter except that it be in the realm of academic and professional matters and that it not be already a part of an existing collective agreement. (See 3540.) "Profession" is ambiguous. Our view, however, is this: From their inception, the community colleges have been part of the Public School System and thus, faculty have had a dual role: (1) traditional collegiate participation in governance and (2) the role of an employee. We feel that the professionalism referred to here is that of the professional as educator, not of the professional as employee. Secondly, "Upon request of the Academic Senate . . . the governing board or such board members or administrative officers as it may designate shall meet and confer with representatives of the Academic Senate . . . with respect to recommendations made or proposed to be made by the senate . . ." Thirdly, such designation of a board representative "shall not preclude the representatives of an academic senate . . . from meeting with or appearing before the governing board with respect to the views, recommendations, or proposals of the senate . . . at a regular or special meeting of the board." There are no restrictions here limiting subject matter nor must the subject matter conform to the board's printed agenda. An orderly procedure would indicate that the board would have as part of the regular agenda an item related to "comments from the Academic Senate."

Extraordinary Duties

In Title V 53205, duties may be requested of the academic senate by administration or the governing board, and the academic senate may assume such responsibilities and perform such functions. A final question remains. How does the academic senate maintain its role if requested to assume responsibilities or perform functions its feels are alien to its role? If the academic senate is requested to perform a function which, in the judgment of the senate, is dubiously related to "making recommendations with respect to academic and professional matters," the academic senate can either refuse to accept the request; or as a viable alternative, the senate can designate a Select Committee to discharge the function requested by the administration or the governing board. If the latter method were chosen, the senate would then refuse to entertain any motion or discussion regarding the work of such a select committee except in the area of whether or not the select committee was carrying out the explicit charge given to it. Such a select committee after formation would be entirely responsible to those requesting the service with respect to its decisions.

Summary

Academic senates as representatives of faculty give faculty a voice in the formation of district policy by recommending to administration and the governing body. They must be listened to and responded to and may present their views, proposals, and recommendations either in writing or by meet-and-confer sessions or by appearing at board meetings.

Finally, the academic senate must carry out the mandate of Title V to recommend what is seen as best for education and allow employee organizations to care for what they see is best for the employee. Cooperation between academic senates and an exclusive representative is essential to help resolve conflicts on overlapping scope of representation.

II. 3540: Government Code, Title 1. (SB 160)

It is the further intention of the Legislature that nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to restrict, limit, or prohibit the full exercise of the functions of any academic senate or faculty council established by a school district in a community college to represent the faculty in making recommendations to the administration and governing board of such school district with respect to district policies or academic and professional matters, so long as the exercise of such functions does not conflict with lawful collective agreements.

III. Relations with the Chancellor's Office

Five points outlining cooperation between the Chancellor's Office and the Academic Senate were recommended to the BGCCC by Chancellor Craig in 1979. Since then Chancellor Hayward has agreed to these points in full and to their publication in this brochure. These points are stated in the memo on the following page:

July 26, 1979

TO: Board of Governors

FROM: William G. Craig

SUBJECT: Addenda to the Academic Senate Report

As addenda to the Academic Senate report, I would like to recommend:

1. Regular meetings with the Chancellor and representatives of the statewide senate.
2. Officers of the Academic Senate should be placed on the Chancellor's Office mailing list for receipt of agenda items, reports, and other pertinent papers of interest to faculty.
3. The Chancellor should be invited to attend meetings of the Senate.
4. Under Title 5, Administrative Code Sections 53201 and 53206 district administrations should be urged to involve local senates in reports and information coming to the Board of Governors and the Chancellor's Office.
5. The Chancellor should request names for committee appointments and consult with the Academic Senate in appointing faculty to Chancellor's task groups and committees.

Dear Mr. Bischof:

Thank you very much for your thoughtfulness in writing me with respect to my comments at the San Diego meeting of the ASCCC. I also enjoyed very much the brochure entitled "The Role of Academic Senates in California Community Colleges." I found the views very well stated and, in my view, quite clear. In fact, I must indicate that the views expressed in the brochure reflect my own perception of the role of the academic senate. It was because I had such a conception of the academic senate that I wished to provide a limited scope in the collective bargaining procedure as it related to the community colleges. Absent such a limitation, the academic senates would ultimately find themselves eliminated from the process of exercising a professional faculty responsibility. I am hopeful that the intent language of the law and the limited definition of scope contained therein will provide the means by which the academic senates will be able to continue to exercise the function which historically has been assigned to them as a consequence of the provisions of Title V and basic policy as it has been reflected in the past in many community college districts.

I am enclosing a paper in which I briefly summarize the legislative activity which ultimately resulted in the enactment of SB 160.

Sincerely,

ALBERT S. RODDA
